EDITOR'S COMMENTS

This series of occasional papers on educational issues is published for members of the John Dewey Society. Additional copies may be purchased from the Treasurer, Robert Sherman, University of Florida.

Topics chosen for publication are of general nature, of interest to school and college faculty and administrators. Members may suggest topics for publication by contacting the Editor of the series. Future topics in process are: values clarification, and vocational/career education. The adoption of Collective Bargaining, the topic for this issue, is increasing in schools and colleges across the nation. We believe the reader will find these papers informative and interesting.

The Editorial Committee and the John Dewey Society are indebted to Dr. Mark M. Chamberlain, President of Glassboro State College, Vice-President L. Reader, and others at the college. We are especially grateful to Ms. Kathie Small, Ms. Vicky Grob, and students Ms. Jeanne Dugan, Ms. Maryanne Jordan, and Ms. Patricia Sanders for preparing the manuscripts. Dr. Samuel Micklus, professor in Industrial Education/Technology provided the cover design for The Dewey Society. Professor Mary Anne Raywid, Hofstra University, was the first to propose the series.

Finally, as Chairperson, I wish to thank Professor Gerald Reagan, The Ohio State University, and Professor Gordon Ruscoe, University of Louisville, who do the real work as members of the Editorial Committee. The Dewey Society is fortunate to have their editorial services in the production of the series.
