Pay-Per-View: Alternative or a Necessity in Today’s Economy
Guest Editor, Beth Bernhardt

Pay-Per-View: Alternative or a Necessity in Today’s Economy ............. 1
by Beth Bernhardt — Did you know that back in 2002 at the Charleston Conference, Beth talked about UNC Greensboro being one of the first schools to set up pay-per-view to provide access to articles from unsubscribed journals?

Forcing the Moment to Its Crisis: Thoughts on Pay-Per-View and the Perpetual Access Ideal ............................... 14 by Patrick L. Carr — Budget cuts are forcing librarians to make painful decisions, and, in this context, it seems sensible to explore all avenues for reducing e-resource costs without reducing access – including those that are at odds with the perpetual access ideal.

Getting Our Feet Wet: One Library’s Experience with Transactional Access ...................................................... 16 by Ryan Weir and Ashley Ireland — In 2005, following years of passive-reallocation of one-time purchase funds to serial holdings funds, Murray State University Libraries was forced to dramatically cut its journal holdings.

PUBLISHING

Biz of Acq.................................54 Things to Consider When Planning Section Programming by Sylvia McAphee — It is more than likely that an acquisitions librarian will have the opportunity to plan a program for a section of a national library association during the course of his/her career; but few have experience or background in doing this.

From the University Press.............56
Google 2.0: Still a Mixed Blessing? by Sanford G. Thatcher — Sandy provides us with more details on the Google Settlement.

Group Therapy............................59
A Case of Discredited Research by Jack

Issues in Vendor/Library Relations...73
Blackwell's by Bob Nardini — Bob talks about the Blackwell's business which goes back to 1879.

INTERNATIONAL DATELINE

The PIRUS Project: Developing a Standard for Recording and Reporting Usage at the Individual Article Level........................................82 by Peter T. Shepherd — The original PIRUS project, funded by JISC, and completed in January 2000 (3) demonstrated that it is technically feasible to create, record and consolidate usage statistics for individual articles using data from repositories and publishers, despite the diversity of organizational and technical environments in which they operate.

TECHNOLOGY AND STANDARDS

I Hear the Train A Comin'.............66
A Postcard from Charleston by Greg Tananbaum — Greg talks about his live version of this column at the 2009 Charleston Conference.

Technology Left Behind ...............76
DeepDyving into Journal Article Rental by Cris Ferguson — DeepDyve is really two tools in one, both an A&I database, indexing content from a wide variety of publishers, and a journal article rental service, enabling users to obtain access to the articles found via the index.
