FEATURES

Eliminating Duplication In A Shared Storage Facility: Practical and Political Issues
by Joanne Oud — Recent years have seen an increase in the number of shared remote storage facilities being constructed as libraries facing space shortages see the value of sharing storage costs. As shared facilities become more common, the issue of how to deal with multiple copies is emerging as a concern in cooperative collection development.

Author Care: The Rights Publishers Offer and What Authors Think
by Ana Arias Terry — The old saying that it's a good policy not to bite the hand that feeds you applies in many contexts, including the academic and professional publishing arena. Simply put, it's sound business to take care of the authors whose very research efforts and scholarly writing culminate in a journal owned by a publisher.

Digital Archiving: A Work In Progress
by Ana Arias Terry — The field of digital archiving is new in human history and presents a wealth of challenges exacerbated by the increasing rapidity with which the associated technologies are evolving. To grapple with the issues involved, Ana takes us on a stroll along the river of time.

Biz of Acq — Alibris and 21 North Main: Breaking New Ground in the Search for O.P. Books by Dennis K. Lambert — In recent years, the out of print market has consistently borne happy tidings to acquisitions librarians. Fulfillment rates have been high with the rise of Web-based mega-catalogs that aggregate thousands of book dealers' inventories. Dennis Lambert finds that some used booksellers are raising the bar of customer service standards to give acquisitions librarians promising choices for out of print purchasing.

Public Prayers
Rodger Smith tells us about preparing his public library's materials budget.

Op Ed — Opinions and Editorials
Devil's Advocate — Canaries in the Coal Mine by Robert Molyneux — Bob says that the erosion of full-time faculty from library schools comes at a time when the importance of what we do has never been clearer.

Back Talk
Double Fold or Double Talk by Anthony Ferguson — This is Tony's answer to Nicholson Baker's Double Fold.
