Science advances by making connections.

Link

The connection starts here

11 ONLINE LIBRARIES: Fully indexed and searchable: Chemical Sciences • Computer Science • Economics • Engineering • Environmental Sciences • Geosciences • Law • Life Sciences • Mathematics • Medicine • Physics and Astronomy

INTERDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH: LINK subscribers can access literature in our 11 online libraries, allowing them to search across a vast range of information. For example, pharmaceutical researchers can find a wealth of data on environmental sciences. Lawyers gain in-depth knowledge on areas from chemistry to mathematics to medicine.

FREE ACCESS: LINK offers tables of contents and detailed abstracts for every publication at no cost. What’s more, we supply up-to-date information on research topics and background on the editors of each publication.

SOLVING THE SPACE CHALLENGE: Our online format enables organizations to continuously expand their collections in the confines of existing space.

The LINK Online First service lets users access peer reviewed articles well before print publication, significantly reducing the time it takes for critical discoveries to reach the research community.

Subject: Supporting Customer’s Rights to Electronic Linking

Perhaps one of the most exciting changes brought about by technology is the ability for customers to navigate from A&I databases to fulltext articles and from fulltext information back to bibliographic resources. This ease of linking between these electronic resources owned by a customer increases the value and utility of both types of products. This synergy truly represents an instance where the whole is greater than the sum of its parts for everyone involved.

We at CSA believe that customers subscribing to CSA content (i.e. our A&I databases), should be able to link to the associated fulltext articles, as long as the customer has rights to the content. As such, we have done everything to facilitate this linking. Conversely, we also encourage fulltext publishers to provide links to our bibliographic resources.

Unfortunately, some organizations refuse to support broad-based linking. CSA believes that this is wrong and not in the best interest of the customer. Accordingly, CSA is terminating relationships with aggregators and content providers who refuse to allow mutual customers to link to data which they own or license.

We hope you share our deep concern about this issue. We strongly urge you to explore how broad-based linking can benefit your customers. Also, please convey the need for broad-based linking to your associated aggregators and content providers.

As an industry, we should not ignore the impact of linking technology. Rather, we should embrace broad-based linking and use it to the advantage of our customers.

Best regards,

James P. McGinty

AIP Conference Proceedings are now online

Institutions that place a standing order for all Conference Proceedings receive online access to the full text of every online volume, beginning with number 500 (January 2000). Online access will allow users to search, browse tables of contents, and link to abstracts and full-text articles. To learn more, visit http://proceedings.aip.org.

New AIP Web page expressly for librarians

Journal pricing. Document delivery. Consortia licensing. Now the information that you need for almost any AIP- or AIP-distributed product or service can be found on our new Web site designed just for librarians. In addition to the above topics, you’ll find links to a wealth of valuable information on AIP Conference Proceedings, Virtual Journals, copyright and privacy policies, the OJPS Usage Statistics Service, and much, much more. See it for yourself at http://librarians.aip.org.

Virtual Journals in science and technology

Virtual Journals are online publications that collect relevant papers from a broad range of physical science journals. The present series of five journals offers your patrons quick, convenient access to the latest developments in nanoscale science, biological physics, quantum information, superconductivity, and ultrafast science. Articles are selected from the latest issues of nearly 50 source journals, including those of AIP, APS, OSA, and 11 other publishers — including Science and Nature. Visit www.virtualjournals.org.

Online usage statistics

Now get usage statistics for AIP, APS, AAPT, and ASCE online journals. This Web-based service generates reports that are available to library administrators by username/password. Statistics are available from 2000 forward at http://ojps.aip.org/jhtml/inst, and are updated monthly.

"The Shorter is the Matterhorn to the great OED's Everest—elegant, awesome and marvelous to behold, differing only in size. A stupendous achievement."
—Simon Winchester

"No writer, and no serious reader, can afford to live without the Shorter OED."
—Annie Dillard

Now updated with more than 3,000 new words and meanings, The Shorter Oxford English Dictionary manages more than one third of the coverage of the OED in one-tenth the size. More than 500,000 definitions grace its 3,984 pages, and its new innovative, open design makes this vast amount of information easily navigable and identifiable.

The Shorter covers virtually every word or phrase in use in English—worldwide—since 1700. Drawing on the continuous research for The Oxford English Dictionary, each definition's changing meanings are followed throughout history and are illustrated by more than 83,000 quotations from some 7,000 authors.

The world's most comprehensive, thorough, and up-to-date unabridged dictionary, The Shorter Oxford English Dictionary is an essential resource for every library.

"It brings the bad news with the good—all the barbarous new words I don't want to know about, but must. It is 'cool' by its own definition: 'admirably up to date.'"
—Garry Wills

Applied Mechanics Reviews

REVIEW ARTICLES...RETROSPECTIVES...AND MORE

Full text of Applied Mechanics Reviews (AMR) is now accessible online. This includes retrospectives (1 per issue), review articles (3-4 per issue), book reviews (20-25 per issue) and book notes (35-40 per issue). AMR review articles organize, summarize and clarify knowledge as it currently exists in the technical literature. AMR articles reflect upon active areas of research, including theoretical, computational, and experimental aspects, as well as theoretical modeling, methods of analysis and instrumentation.

AMR FEATURES:

- Retrospectives by respected authors looking back on their work and areas of interest
- Review articles by authors from around the world
- AMR's scope encompasses mechanics topics across the engineering sciences spectrum, such as fluid and solid mechanics, heat transfer, dynamics and vibration
- 20-25 book reviews in every issue — no other journal reviews as many books per issue
- 35-40 books notes in every issue which describe newly published books
- Access to the AMR Journal Article Abstracts Database, containing 250,000 records with about 2000 being added monthly
