What is Advancing Indiana?

Advancing Indiana is a consortium of individuals, organizations and businesses.

Hoosiers who understand that our roads and bridges are deteriorating faster than we can fix them. Hoosiers who understand that if we can't repair our roads or develop new ones, we won't be able to attract jobs or keep the jobs we have. Advancing Indiana understands that all those who depend on our roads for commerce and travel need a strong, unified voice.

It's a focus point for those who want to see our road system keep up with our economic growth.

Since 1990, 80% of all new business locations in Indiana have been within 10 miles of an interstate highway. Communities across the state depend on good roads for economic growth. But, there are over 100 key Indiana approved road projects unable to be built due to a funding crisis. Available funding for the next five years covers only 8% of these projects. Which communities will get funding for these vital projects and which will be left out?

Advancing Indiana is a way for business people, government officials and Hoosiers from all walks of life to connect the gaps in our road system.

If we don't figure out how to connect our communities, our economy's growth will falter. We must work together to solve the problem of our road deterioration and lack of funding. For decades, groups around the state have fought for good roads but without success. Instead of good roads, we are connected by congestion, bridges to nowhere, dangerous roadways, flooding and frustrated businesses.

Who should belong to Advancing Indiana?

Anyone who cares about the progress of Indiana. Anyone who wants to see better jobs in Indiana. People who work in manufacturing, education, retail, government, service, communications, utilities, hotels, or entertainment. People who belong to associations or economic development groups.

Instead of separately fighting for attention and funding, instead of bandaid approaches, we can join together to create strength and solutions.

What does Advancing Indiana do?

We educate, communicate and connect. We spotlight the problems and help craft the solutions. Working with communities all across Indiana, we will bring the conditions of our roads and bridges, the key economic development role our road system plays, and the importance of solid funding to the forefront. We want adequate road modernization funding by 1999.

What will Advancing Indiana members do?

Members will help community and state leaders understand how important it is to solve this crisis. Members can be very involved or they can simply lend support. Active members in communities everywhere will spread the word. As the organization grows, our unified voice will be heard. Our target for membership is 10,000. We can, and we will, ensure that our roads and bridges support Indiana's growth.
Are our roads in poor condition?
Just listen to what these Hoosiers say!

The county already has a priority list of 700 miles of roads that need work, but with the limited funds available each year and the high cost of repair, workers have been able to repair only 20 or 30 miles a year, County Commissioner Stephen Wurster said. From the Michigan City News Dispatch, March 1996.

"It's one thing to close a road or bridge to work on it. It's another thing to close a bridge indefinitely and not have any kind of plans for what is going to be done." Pike County Engineer Harold Sorrells in the Petersburg Press Dispatch, April 1996.

...the narrow Park Road leading from Ind. 68 to the plant can't handle up to five 18-wheel semis delivering products many mornings...the company must grow in Haubstadt or possibly relocate in the future. From the Daily Clarion in Princeton, April 1996.

Many businesses chose to locate on the Bypass with the understanding that the road would be eventually expanded. Several companies are waiting for the completion of the project... "It would be kind of hard for a company to open when construction is still pending." Tim Eckerle, Grant County Economic Growth Council executive director, quoted in article from the Chronicle Tribune in Marion, March 1996.

The bridge has no weight limit posted, and heavy emergency vehicles won’t cross it. "We're concerned with the safety of it. We want Harrison County to have some kind of standards for bridges." Harrison County Resident Julie Hoene, quoted in article from the Corydon Democrat, February 1996.

Working with a tight budget of only $70,000, which includes the lottery funding, many streets which ordinarily would get repaired will sit rocky for another year. From the Frankfort Times, March 1996.

As our community absorbs new residents, so must our roads bear the burden of more traffic. These are roads that were constructed with horses pulling slip scoops and gravel wagons. From the Johnson County Daily Journal, March 1996.

"We're strapped in our highway fund." County Highway Engineer Charlie Day in the Columbus Republic, February 1996.

"I have never seen roads anywhere in such despair. So much so that in recent months I've curtailed my visits to Indiana because of the frustration of having to travel on such inadequate roads." LaPorte County resident and talkshow host Oprah Winfrey quoted in a letter sent to LaPorte County Commissioners, May 1996.

"In 1999, we run out of money to build any roads in this state." Steve Wuertz, Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) project development specialist quoted in article in the Peru Daily Tribune, June 1996.
These road projects will not be done. Why? Indiana is short $1.6 billion dollars!

Indiana can only afford to do 8% of these approved road projects between now and the year 2000.

These projects don’t include county and local roads!

Our growth and jobs depend on good roads.

Advancing Indiana can solve this crisis with your help!
