REFERENCE PUBLISHING ISSUE PUBLISHING

Biz of Acq ............................................. 64
Collaborative Partnerships: Expanding the Vendor/Librarian Relationship by Ann Branton — From a technical services perspective, one librarian’s collaborative partnerships with library book vendors can be applied to all areas of doing business with vendors.

And They Were There .............................. 65
Reports of Meetings by Sever Bordeianu — This completes our reports from the 2004 Charleston Conference. The entire Charleston Conference Proceedings has just been published by Greenwood/Libraries Unlimited.

BOOKSELLING

Little Red Herrings ................................. 68
Stop the Presses: Feet No Longer Needed; Hands Next to Go by Mark Herr ing — Mark finds the state of articles about the digital tsunami puzzling. Keep this up and we’ll all be working for Microsoft, or not at all.

Leaving the Books Behind ......................... 69
Job Mania by Mary Tinker Massey — As a recent graduate who is currently employed, Tinker comments on job descriptions, the job application process and the interview.

Lost in Austin ........................................... 70
by Thomas W. Leonard — Tom continues to discuss his reading and review of independently-published books for ForeWord magazine. This time he discusses religious fiction. Which leads him to say: “There are a lot of good books being published outside of New York, just as there are not so good books coming from Gotham City.”

INTERNATIONAL

International Dateline .............................. 79
by Claire Liée Bénoit — Claire Liée did a four month sabbatical internship at Aux Amateurs this past year. Hear all about it!

TECHNOLOGY AND STANDARDS

I Hear the Train A Comin’ ......................... 78
PubMed Central by Greg Tananbaum — This month’s new column focused on PubMed Central’s recent efforts to capture publicly funded research in an openly accessible archive.

Technology Left Behind ......................... 83
Google Scholar and the OpenURL by Cris Ferguson — Last November, Google released Google Scholar, a new search tool focused on finding scholarly information on the Web.

COUNTER Code of Practice ......................... 84
Comments sought on the draft COUNTER Code of Practice for Books and Reference Works by Peter T Shepherd — The full text of Release 1 of the COUNTER Code of Practice for Books and Reference Works is freely accessible on the COUNTER Website. It is available for comment until December 2005.

MHBO .................................................. 86
Four Mantras for the Patron-Centered Technical Services Librarian by Rick Anderson — In the interest of promoting a more patron-centered approach to technical services work, Rick offers four mantras that we can all chant every morning as we prepare for the day.

Webworthy .......................................... 16 by Pamela Rose — Unique and interesting Websites organized by broad subject area. Did you know that constrators do not kill by suffocation?

ETC.

Adventures in Librarianship ......................... 93
