2007

Remembering Peter Banks

Greg Tananbaum
gtanbaum@gmail.com

Follow this and additional works at: http://docs.lib.purdue.edu/atg

Part of the Library and Information Science Commons

Recommended Citation
DOI: http://dx.doi.org/10.7771/2380-176X.5103

This document has been made available through Purdue e-Pubs, a service of the Purdue University Libraries. Please contact epubs@purdue.edu for additional information.
Remembering Peter Banks

Column Editor: Greg Tananbaum (Consulting Services at the Intersection of Technology, Content, and Academia) <gtananbaum@gmail.com>

I am both sad and proud to be writing this essay in tribute to my friend and colleague Peter Banks, who died on July 4, 2007 after a struggle with colon cancer. I first came across Peter when he was running the American Diabetes Association’s publications and posting regularly to LIBLICENSE as part of its ongoing open access debate. I was immediately struck by his intelligence, passion, grasp of nuance, and wit. In the years of our friendship, I came to see that these four qualities were at the heart of his essence.

In reading Peter’s posts, it was immediately clear what a strong advocate he was for his readers. He cared fiercely that those in need of research, data, and opinions related to diabetes be able to get their hands on it without delay or struggle. For example, under Peter’s leadership the ADA invested significant resources into “translating” academic findings into language understandable to the average diabetes sufferer. To Peter, the Open Access movement sometimes oversimplified the subtle considerations that went into association publishing. He was unafraid and unashamed to call out the very real costs of government-mandated dissemination, as well as what he saw as the limited returns such advocacy would reap. His manner in doing so was equal parts common sense, unassailable logic, and humor. It was once suggested on one listserv that society publishers often receive subscriptions from scholars interested in their journal’s content but not necessarily supportive of the society’s overall mission, and that this was akin to taxation without representation. Peter’s response provides a good snapshot of his style. “A subscription is not a tax; it is a choice to purchase information,” he wrote. “You might as well make the argument that buying any Kraft product is a tax that forces you to support Philip Morris and, by extension, cigarette smoking. You have a choice: don’t buy anything that’s part of the Phillip Morris empire, and don’t buy Diabetes if you feel that the ADA empire is guilty of something (like suppressing what you might see as the truth of low-carb dieting). Start your own journal of Low-Carbohydrate Science if you wish and if OA is as easy as you believe; no one is forcing you to buy Diabetes.”

To focus on a single issue or position does not do Peter Banks justice, however. Long before we met, Peter was gracious enough to write, these entries speak to his character, his and my approach. I remember talking to him about a big plan I had to align all the world’s scholarly publishers within a grand common postprint service. He told me that it was a great idea, that he would be first in line with the ADA to support it, but that the challenges it faced were likely insurmountable. Then he told me why this was so, and how we might work together to see if we could prove him wrong. We did do the work, and it turned out he was right. But through the process I learned a great deal about hypothesis testing, coalition building, and distilling concepts down to their core benefits. Peter’s patience and guidance served as the catalyst for that lesson.

It was some time before Peter and I got together face-to-face, and when we did it was in the Francis Marion Hotel’s lobby. What better place to meet scholarly publishing’s Dorothy Parker other than in the equivalent of the Algonquin Round Table? We were scheduled to talk for fifteen minutes but sat for ninety instead. Much of the time was filled with breezy back and forth miles away from the scholarly publishing realm. Peter was a runner, as am I. While he was a long-time east coaster, he retained a special affinity for the Bay Area, my home. He also was a bit of a political junkie, another interest we shared. It is a great blessing in life when you can find professional colleagues who so easily become personal friends. Peter fit the bill.

Over the ensuing years our paths continued to cross. In 2006, when Peter’s tenure at the American Diabetes Association was drawing to a close, I tried unsuccessfully to lure him to The Berkeley Electronic Press, my employer at the time. His commitment to his family — his wife’s psychotherapy practice, his children’s final high school years — simply took precedence over a job he was otherwise interested in. Peter’s patience and guidance served as the catalyst for that lesson.

Continued on page 10
The CHARLESTON REPORT

Business Insights into the Library Market

You Need The Charleston Report... if you are a publisher, vendor, product developer, merchandiser, consultant or wholesaler who is interested in improving and/or expanding your position in the U.S. library market.

Subscribe today at our discounted rate of only $75.00

The Charleston Company
6180 East Warren Avenue, Denver, CO 80222
Phone: 303-282-9706 • Fax: 303-282-9743

Rumors
from page 06

approximately 30 books a year with emphasis in anthropology, archaeology, Middle East studies, Western U.S. history, and Utah history. Other strong subject areas include linguistics, Native American studies, Mormon studies, literature and poetry, the natural environment, and outdoor recreation. The active backlist is approximately 350 titles, with annual net sales around $750k. Active series include, Foundations of Archaeological Inquiry, Anthropology of Pacific North America, University of Utah Anthropological Papers, the Agha Shahid Ali Prize in Poetry, and the Utah Series in Turkish and Islamic Studies. Distribution and fulfillment operations are through the Chicago Distribution Center. Wow! Sounds exciting! And challenging!

www.uafupress.com/Careers/

And speaking of Margaret Landesman <margaret.landesman@utah.edu>, she is traveling with her husband Bruce in Europe and just wrote from Krakow! She was enthralled by the Jagiellonian University Library and wanted to do an interview but that didn’t happen ... yet! Anyway, curious, I went to Wikipedia (sorry all you naysayers out there) and learned that in 1491 Copernicus enrolled at the Krakow Academy http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jagiellonian_University (now Jagiellonian University), where he probably first encountered astronomy with the professor Albert Brudzewski http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Albert_Brudzewski. This science soon fascinated him, and he began compiling a large library of books on the subject. Copernicus’ library was later carried off as war booty by the Swedes, during “The Deluge” http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_Deluge_%28Polish_history%29 and is now housed in the Uppsala University Library http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Uppsala_University_Library.” Gosh! What you don’t learn out there on the Web! en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jagiellonian_University

We interrupt this rumorscast for an important announcement — Cris Ferguson’s <cris. ferguson@furman.edu> and husband John Larkin’s baby is here! He came 12 days early. Yes, it’s a HE! They were expecting a little girl but — surprise! Cullen Fredric Larkin was born at 1:01 pm on Tuesday, August 28th and weighed 7 lbs, 8 oz. Cullen is a Gaelic name that means handsome and, appropriately, Cullen has plenty of beautiful blond hair. We will be excited to see Cullen (and his adoring parents) in Charleston in November!

And an exciting announcement from the Addlestone Library at the College of Charleston! The Special Collections department has acquired a 1502 Aldine first edition of Herodotus’ Histories. Considered by many to be the first great prose writer of western civilization history, Herodotus documented the origins of the Greco-Persian wars, which took place in 490 and 480-79 BC. This Aldine edition is the first printing of Herodotus in the original Greek and one of only 25 in existence. Being of Greek extraction myself, I was fascinated to see it “in person” and to try to read some of it! Hoo-ha!

www.cofc.edu/~library/friendsofthelibrary

Royal Swets & Zeitlinger’s current group of shareholders have agreed to sell 100% of the shares in the company for an undisclosed amount to the Dutch-based investment firm Gilde with participation from Swets’ executive management. After several consecutive years of very strong performance, and seeing the company well positioned for long term growth, the current shareholders of Royal Swets & Zeitlinger decided earlier this year to sell their equity holdings. “We are immensely impressed with how Arie Jongejan, Swets’ CEO, and his team turned the company around to its current state of robust financial health”, said Roelof Prins of NPM Capital, one of Swets’ major institutional shareholders. Boudewijn Molenar is the Managing Director of Gilde Buy Out Partners. As we all know, Swets builds on more than 100 years of experience and has more than twenty offices around the world. Gilde Buy Out Partners has funds under management in excess of EUR 1.0 billion. It is a mid-market buy-out investor with a geographical focus on the Benelux, Germany, France, and Switzerland. They have offices in Utrecht, Paris and Zurich.

www.gildepartners.com
www.swets.com/

Speaking of Swets — MyiLibrary Ltd and Swets are partnering to enable customers to access eBooks and electronic journals from one point of access. MyiLibrary provides access to more than 70,000 eBooks. Swets-Wise Subscriptions provides services for the management and procurement of journals. The first offering of combined services between MyiLibrary and Swets is expected to launch in September of this year. (That’s now!) MyiLibrary Ltd. is an Ingram Digital Group company.

www.myilib.com
www.ingramdigital.com
www.swets.com

Paul J. Crecca, Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, will be assuming the role of Interim-Chief Executive Officer and Interim-President of Haightst Cross Communications, Inc. (HCC). Mr. Crecca had continued on page 12

Remembering Peter Banks
from page 8

June 22: I used to hate the phrase “Living with Cancer,” which our local hospital uses for its programs and services. I use to think that the phrase prettied up the condition too much. Now, however, I’ve settled into it. I am not cancer and won’t be defined by it, but it is part of my life now. It has taught me things that I ignored for many years — the pleasure of friendship, the beauty of nature, the sustaining power of someone’s call or note. 🌟