From Your (celebrating) Editor:

The first thing to celebrate is the fact that we haven’t had a hurricane in Charleston this year. Oh, I know, we had all sorts of rain storms and people posted pictures on Facebook and all that. But it always floods in Charleston. That’s the problem if you are below sea level! But the second thing that I am celebrating is that our daughter Ileana passed her Internal Medicine Boards! Exciting. Now she can take care of aging Mom and Dad.

This issue is even more cause for celebration. Guest edited by the energizer-bunny Allen McKiel and the resourceful Jim Dooley, it tackles changing library operations in the e-distribution environment. Articles are by Allen and Jim as well as Martha Hruska of UC-San Diego and Jim Bunnelle of the Orbis-Cascade Alliance. There are lots of facts and figures and surveys galore. Our Back Talk is about eBooks and publishers and I am surprised at what Tony Ferguson seems to have been reading! Sue Wiegand focuses on the problem of defining what a database is. If we don’t know, how can we poor patrons/end users/customers know? We have interviews with the glorious Michele Casalini, the charming Peter Brueggeman, and the hard-charging Jane Burke.

A new column in the media space is by Winifred Fordham Metz about the National Media Market, Bill Hannay gives an apple to authors, Joe Badias talks about patron-driven acquisitions. We learn about the very first annual university press week from Brenna McLaughlin and Leila Salisbury. Tom Leonardt praises bookstores, Donald Polzella talks about psychology handbooks to keep in our collection, and Bob Nardini is thinking about air traffic control. Want to know about Reflexive Curation? Or the difference between a good or great research library? You can read it here! There is much more in this issue so go inside and browse awhile!

Meanwhile, I have to get out my kayak. It seems to be flooding outside the Citadel where I live! Oh well!! Happy fall!, Yr. Ed. ☛

Dear Editor:

Please Note: This letter was addressed to Tom Gilson.

Thank you. I think your idea of posting the article and videos is very good. (See “ATG Article of the Week: Science Journal Produces a Different Kind of Viral Video” at http://www. against-the-grain.com/2012/06/atg-article-of-the-week-science-journal-produces-a-different-kind-of-viral-video/)

Charleston is a great conference, has a different spirit, and provides better opportunities for interaction in comparison to many other conferences of comparable size. I am looking forward to attending in the future.

Best regards, Moshe Pritsker, Ph.D.

And speaking of SAGE, did you see they announced the purchase of primary sources publisher Adam Matthew at the Frankfurt Book Fair? Adam Matthew is a publisher of online primary source collections for the humanities and social sciences. Adam Matthew will continue to operate under its existing management. SAGE sales representatives will work closely with the Adam Matthew team to bring the portfolio to an even wider international audience.

Michael Walmsley <MWalmsley@ybp.com> has a new role at YBP. Effective October 1, he moved into the position of Vice President, International Sales. Mike says since YBP has an established customer base in many countries, there are many opportunities for growth internationally as more academic libraries around the world look to acquire English-language books and eBooks.

We are excited to have Lolly Gasaway with us for the 32nd Charleston Conference. Lolly has just published the very first volume in the Charleston Insights in Library, Archival, and Information Science series, Copyright Questions and Answers for Information Professionals. Lolly will be doing a book signing at the Charleston Conference Gala Reception on Thursday night!

Speaking of which, The Charleston Insights series is published by Purdue University Press, where CharlesWatkinson (of Anthony Watkinson fame) is Director. Charles and Anthony and families just returned from Ruth’s (Anthony’s daughter and Charles’ sister) wedding in Northumberland!

Can’t resist. This ATG issue has a Vendor Library Relations column by Bob Nardini. He talks about the need for air traffic controllers in our eBook environment. Well, guess what! The incredible Annette Thomas, CEO of Macmillan’s global science and education...
