Convergence and Collision

Guest Editor, Rob Virkar-Yates

Is the Future Convergence or Collision? ........................................ 1

by Rob Virkar-Yates — Technology is driving convergence – one vision of the future is of users owning a single digital device through which they will consume all their digital content and manage all their communications. What are the implications of this vision for the various participants of the scholarly ecosystem?

Hunters and Gatherers: The Future of Search .................................. 13

by Dr. Andrea Fallas — How will we search when screens are no longer what they are today? Will searching eventually become a conversation?

Convergence! Collision! Bridging the Gap Between Research and Practice ..16

by Andrea Powell — The arrival of the knowledge economy and in particular the spread of networks and telecommunications networks and mobile devices have made information transfer and capacity building core components.

Redrawing the Line: Challenging the Publisher-Library Relationship ...... 18

by Jane Harwell and Joanna Ball — Librarians and publishers have become accustomed to colliding over everything. SAGE and the University of Sussex Library are hoping to change all that.

As Worlds Collide — New Trends and Disruptive Technologies .......... 22

by Darrell W. Gunter — Darrell says that we are at the very beginning of the Knowledge Discovery "Semantic Wave."

Op Ed ............................................. 28

Embracing the Digital: Libraries and the Evolving e-Book Ecosystem by Mark Dahl — A recent call for library rights to interlibrary loan ebooks calls attention to the challenge of sharing ebook content between academic libraries.
