Green Pastel

Luminescent waves
wash through me;
spirits
flow from eyes to fingers and all around bright colors glow; a temporary
balm, gladness of self—sink into the earth.

Hmong Clothes

I don’t understand why I was born Hmong when I have an American attitude and I browse through a culture that chose to leave its homeland for greener pastures but then decides to blame me for not knowing Hmong customs, for not wearing Hmong clothes, for speaking English or Hmonglish instead of just plain Hmong.

But you must agree with me that Hmong language is insufficient for describing everything you want to:
depression, computers, email, shocks to the system, poetry in the veins, feelings beyond "I'm happy, I'm sad, I'm angry, I'm in love," a hundred million tiny cells that make up our bodies, books on philosophy,
colors like fuchsia, cerulean, aquamarine, lavender.

Although I confess, kwv txhiaj is poetic and beautiful once you study the old language.

But how can they look down on me for not knowing how to speak proper Hmong when their proper-Hmong-speaking children can't even find a way to tell their parents that they're gay?

Why was I ashamed and embarrassed when the news spread about Chai Vang, why is it that whenever I see Hmong kids making a ruckus in public I always glance around to see if anyone is thinking, Damn uncivilized savages.

And why the hell do I always feel so conspicuous when I'm at a restaurant with all white people and I see them looking at me?
I want to jump on my table and scream:
YEAH, THIS CHINKY GIRL KNOWS HOW TO USE HER KNIFE AND FORK TOO!

But here's a secret: I love wearing Hmong clothes except they make me look fat and Hollywood makes me feel shitty about myself, which means Hmong clothes make me feel shitty but only when I'm around judging eyes because when I'm alone and I wear Hmong clothes

I feel beautiful.
