Indiana Govt. Document Light Archive Explained

Professor Bert Chapman
Purdue University Libraries

Four major libraries: Indiana State Library, Indiana University-Bloomington, Purdue University Libraries, University of Notre Dame Libraries

Goals

Distribute print and microform collections by agency within these libraries

Emphasize timely and efficient access to these collections

Determine collection stewardship responsibilities by SuDoc numbers

Determine these responsibilities by examining existing institutional collection strengths and curricular/research emphases

Provide bibliographic access to and control of these collections for Indiana users

Goals

Strive for consistency in agency coverage e.g. libraries holding executive, judicial, and independent agencies publications should also hold publications by relevant congressional oversight committees e.g.

Indiana University-Department of State/House & Senate Foreign Relations Committees
Purdue University-Department of Agriculture/House & Senate Agriculture Committees

Purchasing relevant commercial databases/scholarly and popular journals as resources permit to enhance information resources supporting Light Archive collection holdings e.g. ProQuest et. al.

Striving to purchase scholarly works on the history and policymaking performance of collection stewardship agencies to enhance study of these agencies e.g.

Johns Hopkins University Press New Series in NASA History
University Press of Kansas Modern War Studies Series

Consulting with GPO and Light Archive Libraries on relevant developments in our respective institutions that may affect our ability to fulfill our collection steward responsibilities.

Using Needs & Offers Lists and other avenues to fill collection gaps.

Goals

Collection steward libraries personnel strive to augment their knowledge of agency information resources and publication practices through ongoing professional development and sharing findings with Indiana colleagues via:

INDIGO Listserv and INDIGO Meetings

INDIGO Newsletter

One-on-one interaction via email, phone, etc.

INDIANA LIGHT ARCHIVE FOR FEDERAL DOCUMENTS

Indiana State Library

The Indiana Light Archive for Federal Documents is a partnership between the Indiana State Library, Indiana University Libraries, Purdue University Libraries, and the University of Notre Dame Library, representing GPO Depository Libraries in Indiana. Our goal is an archive collection of all federal documents housed in a secure facility with environmental controls that will lengthen the natural life of the tangible documents. Until such a goal can be met, we agree to the establishment, through detailed collection assignments among depositories, of a virtual light archive.

The establishment of this archive, developed in cooperation with our regional depository, the Indiana State Library, and the Superintendent of Documents, will permit depositories to keep only those tangible documents necessary to serve their individual constituents. A plan for disposal will be developed that will ease restrictions and make management of the state process more efficient and productive. Effective delivery will be an essential aspect of this plan.

The Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP) was established by Congress to ensure that the American public has access to its Government's information. Since 1813, depository libraries have safeguarded the public's right to know by collecting, organizing, maintaining, preserving, and assisting users with information from the Federal Government. The FDLP provides Government information at no cost to designated depository libraries throughout the country and territories. These depository libraries, in turn, provide local, no-fee access to Government information in an impartial environment with professional assistance.

ACCESS

Together the depositories of Indiana will create a light archive that will reflect the reality of the digital age while assuring the retention, access and preservation of the printed versions.
