Summer Workshop

“Integrating Computers in the English Curriculum”

sponsored by

The National Writing Centers Association

Sponsored by the NWCA, this workshop on integrating computers into English courses will be held in Logan, Utah, June 15-19, 1987. The course will feature hands-on instruction on HBJ Writer (formerly WANDAH) and methods of using software in writing and literature classes at the high school and college levels. Previous computer knowledge is not required, and graduate credit is available through the Department of English at Utah State University. Enrollment is limited to 40. Registration for the week is $175 (early registration by March 1 is $150).

Instructors: Joyce Kinkead, associate professor of English and Director of Writing at Utah State University, is co-editor of The Writing Center Journal and Executive Secretary of NWCA. She developed a computer-integrated writing program at USU using Writer’s Workbench. Pat Stoddart, English Department Head at Logan High School and computer consultant for the State of Utah, directed a WANDAH test site and developed a computer-assisted English curriculum, a model used in Utah high schools. Both instructors have published articles on using computers in writing programs.
