Summer Workshop

“Integrating Computers in the English Curriculum”

sponsored by

The National Writing Centers Association

Sponsored by the NWCA, this workshop on integrating computers into English courses will be held in Logan, Utah, June 15-19, 1987. The course will feature hands-on instruction on HBJ Writer (formerly WANDAH) and methods of using software in writing and literature classes at the high school and college levels. Previous computer knowledge is not required, and graduate credit is available through the Department of English at Utah State University. Enrollment is limited to 40. Tentative registration for the week is $175.

Instructors: Joyce Kinkead, associate professor of English and Director of Writing at Utah State University, is co-editor of The Writing Center Journal and Executive Secretary of NWCA. She developed a computer-integrated writing program at USU using Writer's Workbench. Pat Stoddart, English Department Head at Logan High School and computer consultant for the State of Utah, directed a WANDAH test site and developed a computer-assisted English curriculum, a model used in Utah high schools. Both instructors have published articles on using computers in writing programs.

National Writing Centers Association

Membership Form _____

The Assembly:

The National Writing Centers Association, an NCTE Assembly, was founded in 1983 to foster communication among writing centers and to provide a forum for concerns. Comprised of directors and staffs of writing centers at universities, two-year colleges, and public schools, the NWCA is governed by an Executive Board which includes representatives from the regional writing center organizations.

Publications:

The Assembly sponsors two publications: The Writing Lab Newsletter, edited by Muriel Harris at Purdue, provides a monthly forum for writing center concerns during the academic year; The Writing Center Journal, edited by Jeanette Harris of Texas Tech and Joyce Kinkead of Utah State University, offers in its two issues per year longer articles on writing center theory and research.

Awards:

NWCA offers the following awards: (1) an award to recognize individuals who have made significant contributions to writing centers, and (2) awards to recognize outstanding publications on writing centers. In addition, grants are available to graduate student whose research focuses on writing centers; regional associations may also apply for grants to hold conferences.

Meetings:

The NWCA meets twice a year, once during NCTE and once during CCCC. At the November convention, NWCA sponsors a day-long workshop; at CCCC in March, the assembly sponsors a special interest session—along with an exchange of writing center materials. The Executive Board meetings at these conferences are open to the membership.
