
Linh Dang
University of Rochester, ldang6@u.rochester.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.lib.purdue.edu/jsaaea

Part of the Bilingual, Multilingual, and Multicultural Education Commons

Recommended Citation
DOI: 10.7771/2153-8999.1171
Available at: https://docs.lib.purdue.edu/jsaaea/vol13/iss1/6

This document has been made available through Purdue e-Pubs, a service of the Purdue University Libraries. Please contact epubs@purdue.edu for additional information.

This is an Open Access journal. This means that it uses a funding model that does not charge readers or their institutions for access. Readers may freely read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of articles. This journal is covered under the CC BY-NC-ND license.
The Sympathizer sets itself apart from other war novels in the genre. Nguyen (2016) brilliantly designates the main character, a Vietnamese French army captain as his protagonist and narrator. As a spy for the north, and immersed in the south, the unnamed narrator experiences both the expected and unexpected chaos of playing the double agent. With a combination of humor and poignancy, the novel offers full transparency into the lives of those impacted by the war and summons the long overdue undivided attention and empathy of readers’ on the Vietnam War. The multilayered novel elucidates the complex relationships between the Far East and Western culture as well as the divided north and south of a single nation. Everyday relationships continue to be dissected as friendship and family ties are scrutinized.

Readers are immediately acquainted with the verbosity of the educated sympathizer who explicitly contends with himself from the first lines of the book until the very last page. While paradoxical, his set of virtues remains questionable. The narrator is described as the illegitimate product of his beloved Vietnamese mother and scorn French priest father. Despite his disadvantaged upbringing, he manages to acquire an education in the United States and returns to Vietnam where he simultaneously serves as a right hand man to a leader of the South and a spy for the North. His narrative takes the form of a confession, rendering fully exposed and intricate details to make this book a page-turner. Readers quickly learn in early chapters that his two closest comrades, sworn into brotherhood by blood causes one to question the notion of loyalty. Bon is the glorified patriot of the south, determined to avenge his father’s death. Meanwhile, their third brother, Man, is the narrator’s bridge to the north. This unorthodox friendship goes through trial under a series of volatile and bona fide events. The novel takes a transition over to the United States at the tail end of the war. Given an extended duty, the narrator escapes his war torn country and seeks refugee in southern California as he kept a close watch on the general and reports intelligence feeds to Man.

The new, but temporary life calls upon the narrator’s expertise in creative ways where his diverse layers unfold. The sympathizer is capable of committing a range of dark deeds and acts of... kindness. He attempts to advocate for the Vietnamese on a Hollywood film set but is egregiously dismissed. Soon after, his original devotion of which he was tasked to do goes into effect. The general and his fellow South Vietnamese clan arrange a counterrevolution that is carefully reported to the North by letters written between Man and the narrator. The narrator is subjected to fulfilling his dual roles without raising suspicion. His line of work widened to include the act of murder.

The storyline plunges into the deep waters as it takes a shift in setting back into Vietnam where the most unyielding of circumstances are dealt with head on.

Nguyen (2016) unravels a myriad of untold experiences through what feels like a welcomed and entirely candid history lesson. As alluded to in a savvy manner, the Vietnamese perspective lacks a presence in the literature to which this novel serves as a major breath of fresh air. Nguyen and his protagonist both commit to unpacking the Vietnam War in a de-Americanized fashion. The overall narrative is absolutely well fleshed out and anything but subtle in its attempt to deter the commonly oversimplified experiences of the Vietnam War.

About the Author

Linh Dang, M.A. is a Ph.D. candidate in Educational Policy and an adjunct faculty member of master’s and doctoral-level research methods courses at the University of Rochester. She recently received her advanced certificate in online teaching and teaches both face-to-face and virtual courses. She earned her Bachelor’s degree in Politics with a minor in Asian Studies and a Master’s in Education along with her teaching credentials at the University of San Francisco. Her research assesses the educational experiences of immigrant students, particularly Southeast Asians in the United States public education system. Using an asset-based approach, she investigates both barriers and different forms of capital that shape adult outcomes for this population. She sits on the doctoral student editorial review board of the Journal of Southeast Asian American Education and Advancement (JSAAEA).
Dr. Changming Duan
University of Missouri-Kansas City
Dr. Sothy Eng
Lehigh University
Dr. Vincent K. Her
University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire
Dr. Peter Nien-Chu Kiang
University of Massachusetts, Boston
Dr. Kevin K. Kumashiro
University of Illinois, Chicago
Dr. Ha Lam
Eastern Mennonite University
Dr. Jonathan H. X. Lee
San Francisco State University
Dr. Monirith Ly
Royal University of Phnom Penh
Dr. Bic Ngo
University of Minnesota
Dr. Leakhena Nou
California State University, Long Beach
Dr. Mark Pfeifer
SUNY Institute of Technology
Dr. Loan T. Phan
University of New Hampshire
Dr. Karen Quintiliani
California State University, Long Beach
Dr. Angela Reyes
Hunter College
The City University of New York
Dr. Fay Shin
California State University, Long Beach
Dr. Christine Su
College of San Mateo
Dr. Alisia Tran
Arizona State University
Dr. Khatharya Um
University of California, Berkeley
Dr. Kim Tran
University of California, Los Angeles, Glendale Community College
Dr. Molly Wiebie
The University of Texas at Austin

Dr. Sophal Ear
Occidental College
Dr. Jeremy Hein
University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire
Dr. Nancy H. Hornberger
University of Pennsylvania
Dr. Peter Tan Keo
New York University
Dr. Yvonne Kwan
San Jose State University
Dr. Rayv Lao
California State University, Los Angeles
Dr. Stacey Lee
University of Wisconsin, Madison
Dr. Sue Needham
California State University, Dominguez Hills
Dr. Max Niedzwiecki
Daylight Consulting Group
Dr. Clara Park
California State University, Northridge
Dr. Giang Pham
University of Massachusetts Amherst
Dr. Malaphone Phommasa
University of California Santa Barbara
Dr. Kalyani Rai
University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee
Dr. Cathy J. Schlund-Vials
University of Connecticut, Storrs
Dr. Nancy J. Smith-Hefner
Boston University
Dr. Yer J. Thao
Portland State University
Dr. Monica M. Trieu
Purdue University
Dr. Silvy Un
Saint Paul Public Schools
Dr. Linda Trinh Vo
University of California, Irvine
Dr. Yang Sao Xiong
The University of Wisconsin-Madison
Dr. Zha Blong Xiong
University of Minnesota

https://docs.lib.purdue.edu/jsaae/vol13/iss1/6
DOI: 10.7771/2153-8999.1171