Two Poems: Sim Caux Suix; Gux-Taaix's Cornbread

Janit V. Saechao
N/A, janitsaechao@gmail.com

Follow this and additional works at: https://docs.lib.purdue.edu/jsaaea

Part of the Bilingual, Multilingual, and Multicultural Education Commons

Recommended Citation
DOI: 10.7771/2153-8999.1187
Available at: https://docs.lib.purdue.edu/jsaaea/vol14/iss1/11

This document has been made available through Purdue e-Pubs, a service of the Purdue University Libraries. Please contact epubs@purdue.edu for additional information.

This is an Open Access journal. This means that it uses a funding model that does not charge readers or their institutions for access. Readers may freely read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of articles. This journal is covered under the CC BY-NC-ND license.
Creative and Literary Works

Two Poems

Janit Von Saechao

Sim Caux Suix

Pricked middle fingers pull red thread through fabric, spilling siqv, the same color as the blood
I expect to see surface.

The pulsing pain reminds me to take a moment and admire how these hands, at 26 have taught themselves the tradition of congx-congx through three dollar department-store sewing sets and scattered youtube searches.

Second generation struggles of fuqc jueiv hnaangx namx for reclamation
still yield divine lessons delivered in the form of sim caux suix on the importance of patience precision presence all combined to create tapestries of complex perfection
Hnangv mbou ganh nyei reflection.
Gux-Taaix’s Cornbread

The smell of raw corn reminds me of you.
Warm, wrinkled hands scrubbing sweet kernels against the same cheese grater you’d had since I was 4.

All that work for your favorite cheap meal
made of ga’maeqc
mixed with water
white flower
and sugar
poured into a pan and patiently waited upon til toasted golden brown.

You called it ga’maeqc njuov but it was more like a pancake than bread.
Pulled apart to reveal sweet,
steaming, sticky goo.
Crispy on the outside and soft on the inside, perfect for chomping dentures through.

About the Author

Janit Von Saechao, is a non-binary, indigenous Khmu and Iu Mien writer and creator currently residing in Portland, OR. Born and raised in the East Bay Area, they are the first child of refugees from the U.S. Secret War in Laos. Their pieces are often uncensored documentations of their most vulnerable moments of growth, change and discovery. They recognize that their voice, in its many forms has been the basis of their survival and ability to thrive. Through creating, they explore their relationships with their identities while actively striving toward artistic and cultural preservation for their peoples. They dream of a future for their community that allows them to return to what they have always known—a life that is decolonized and full and free. Follow their work at janitsaechao.com
Doctoral Student Editorial Review Board

Diana Chandara
University of Minnesota

Bao Diep
University of Minnesota

Nielsen Hul
Cornell University

Vanessa Na
University of California, San Diego

Hoa Nha Nguyen
Boston College

Linda Marie Pheng
University of Wisconsin-Madison

Mai Vang
University of Massachusetts Boston

Thong Vang
University of Minnesota

Linh Dang
University of Rochester

Annie BichLoan Duong
San Joaquin County Office of Education

Dung Minh Mao
University of Minnesota

Thien-Huong Ninh
University of Southern California

Khoi Nguyen
George Mason University

Krissyyvan Truong
Claremont Graduate University

Melissa Vang
San Diego State University