The Acquisitions Librarian

Haworth Press
Editor in Chief, Bill Katz

Guest editors for this special issue are Richard Wood, Sam Houston State University and Katina Strauch, College of Charleston.

Articles are solicited on the general topic of the RLG conspectus, particularly in smaller academic, public, and school libraries. Some of the general categories that we are soliciting contributed papers in are as follows:

- < Management uses /values relating to collection management, budgeting, staffing, public relations, etc.
- < Structure, models
- < Resource sharing and consortia use
- < Faculty involvement/use of expert opinion
- < Methods used (problems, issues, methods, etc. with respect to list checking, shelf list counts, usage statistics, materials budget analysis, collection examination, etc.)
- < Critical assessment including verification studies, comparison with other methods, validity/reliability, etc.
- < Other: particular uses, problems, contexts (small public or community college library use, etc.)

Interested librarians or faculty should send an abstract (at least 250 words) or a draft article by 15 December 1990 to:

Please include your work and home addresses as well as telephone numbers to assist the editors in contacting you.

FREE SUBSCRIPTIONS OFFERED IN EXCHANGE FOR SURVEY

Free one-year subscriptions to SciTech Book News, Reference & Research Book News, and/or University Press Book News are available to librarians willing to gather statistics for Book News, Inc.

The three Book News periodicals are annotated bibliographies of new, high-level books. Librarians who wish to participate in the study must have an approval plan and be willing to fill out a form contained in each issue.

The Book News study is an effort to test the St. Clair & Treadwell conclusions (LTRS, 33/4) regarding approval plan efficacy.

Current subscribers may participate and will have their subscriptions extended one-year in exchange.
