

Road School Wrap Up

John P. Isenbarger

Director

Indiana Department of Highways

I have been told that Francis Henson has not missed a morning session of Road School for 26 years. He is always here, and I suppose that in itself is some kind of an award. At the Indiana Department of Highways, we try to recognize those who go beyond the call of duty. The February 110 Percent Club recipient has been in the department for 37 years, and is presently our Greenfield District construction engineer. Francis Henson motivates and encourages employees in a very professional manner. His reputation for fairness has gained him the respect and admiration of his fellow employees and contractors with whom he has worked for many years.
