From Your (energized) Editor:

It's always wonderful to take a break from the routine of your life. And that's what I have been doing. Had a houseful of company for the holidays and spent a lot of time cooking and cleaning and sightseeing and shopping. It was even cold (60s) in Charleston and we felt like it was "winter." Even went to New York with my daughter for a brief visit. You talk about an energized city.

Meanwhile, back at the ATG ranch, we (my right-hand helper, Toni Nix really) were struggling with new software which is supposed to make ATG "easier" to produce (and may help to put it online?). Come again? It has been far from easy so far! In fact, every single character has had to be rekeyed and reformatted. So, if you see anything amiss, please let us know. Anyway, this issue is very late but it will make Midwinter!

The wonderful Karen Christensen has collected some very interesting articles on a variety of innovative topics. She has titled this issue Beyond Boundaries: Knowledge Innovation and Generation. Howard Burrows writes about the healthy information economy, David Levinson talks about the benefits of interdisciplinary publishing, David Pollard explores new roles for librarians, Karen herself talks about the rise of social media, Eric Calaluca explores the intersection of print and electronic media in his discussion of Reference Universe, and Tim Coates talks about the future of UK libraries. Finally, Dave Tyckoson tells us that innovation in libraries is not a new occurrence. Our Op Ed this issue is by the inimitable Rick Anderson on the "value of everything and the price of nothing." Hmm. Cathy Moore-Jansen, John H. Williams, and Mary Walker dissect Funds and Accounting Trees.

We have several mentions about the 2006 Charleston Conference, from Tony Ferguson, Bob Nardini, Greg Tananbaum, and John Riley. John Cox joins us as a regular columnist with his "As I See It" and we are honored to have an international dateline from our correspondent in Russia, Fred Lynden. Our interviews are with Richard Charkin and Hazel Woodward. And we can't leave out Ned Kraft who gets a belly laugh out of me every time and also in this issue Margaret Landesman has an incredibly clever fable called "Article and Book Meet the Google."

And that's just the tip of the iceberg. Talk about getting energized! It's exciting what's happening in our world.

May 2007 bring you all that you ever wished for! Love, Yr. Ed. 🌱

Dear Editor:

Many thanks for sending the article [eBook Rollout, v.18#5, November 2006]. We really like Against the Grain. Keep up the good work.

Thanks again,

Jessica Gwendolyn Blower

Editor's Note: Cris Ferguson's eBook Rollout insert in the November ATG has been a huge hit. We have gotten many, many requests for it. Thanks to Cris for her diligent work on this project. And it is Cris's plan to update the eBook rollout as necessary. We are trying to get a format on the ATG Website that we can work with. Stay tuned. www.against-the-grain.com

And, just so you don't think we screwed up (not us, never!), no affiliation is given for Jessica by request. — Yr. Ed. 🌱
