FEATURES

Remembering 1968... – Guest Editor, Bruce Heterick

Remembering 1968	1	Not Alone: A Digital Preservation Community	34
by Bruce Heterick — The long-term preservation of electronic journals is not just a "large research library problem." It is a community problem that requires broad support across the spectrum of libraries.		by Martha Anderson — The U.S. Congress recognized the increasingly digital nature of the creative output of the nation. Public Law 106-554 charged the Library of Congress with the leadership of a program to develop a national strategy to preserve digital content.

Spoilt for Choice.....	18	What about E-books?	40
A Comparative Study of E-journal Archiving Solutions by Maggie Jones — Librarians wishing to move to e-only access face a major dilemma as they are aware that continued access is something that cannot necessarily be guaranteed to them for as long as they require it.		by Toni Tracy — Between September 2007 and February 2008, six scholarly publishers and three commercial eBook aggregators were interviewed and asked about various aspects of their eBook publishing and distribution activities.

Survey of Library Director Attitudes Toward Digital Preservation	26	Supporting a Paperless Future	46
by Nancy Maron — This survey showed strong support for the concept of e-journal preservation, paired with the expressed belief that libraries themselves ought to take an active role and seemed to suggest that we would observe high levels of participation in e-journal preservation initiatives.		by Carol Richman and Jayne Marks — There is cost associated with secure preservation of content. Each program must be carefully dissected to ensure a long-term budget strategy.

Digital Preservation and the Small Academic Library	30	Op Ed – Little Red Herrings.....	54
by Marilyn Geller — Should a small academic library spend some of its collection development budget for Portico membership? Lesley University thought so.		Kicking a Gift Horse in the Mouth by Mark Herring — $100 million has been handed to us to infuse new blood into our graying and some would say, dying, profession of librarianship. Have we greeted it with our hands over our mouths?

Back Talk — In the X Movie.....	94
by Tony Ferguson — Will POD change the publishing world forever?

ATG SPECIAL REPORTS

Libraries as Publishers; Publishers as Libraries – Where Do We Go From Here?	46
by Tony Horava — As libraries and publishers, how do our respective sets of values lead us consciously – or not so consciously – to approach opportunities and reinvent our roles in particular ways?

An MLS by Any Other Name	52
by Jeanette C. Smith and Elizabeth A. Titus — Through a collegial process, the New Mexico State University Library achieved its goal of defining equivalency and degree requirements for hiring its next generation of library faculty.

Linking Collections and Readers: Some Possibilities for Collaboration	56
by Richard Hume Werking — This is about the Janus Conference in October 2005 and is a revised version of Richard's paper given at the Charleston Conference November 7, 2007.
