RESEARCH AGENDA FOR THE NEW DECADE: A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF THE AGRICULTURAL SCENE

ANSON BERTRAND

USDA, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Anson R. Bertrand was appointed Director of Science and Education for the USDA on July 20, 1979. In this position, equivalent to Assistant Secretary, Dr. Bertrand is a General Officer of the department and serves as policy advisor to the Secretary of Agriculture and is a member of the department's program and budget review board. He has the responsibility for evaluating and directing the department's role as the lead agency of the U.S. Government in the Food and Agriculture Sciences. Dr. Bertrand also serves as Head of the Science and Education Administration of the department, a position he assumed July 1978. The Sciences Education Administration combines under Dr. Bertrand's direction the department's major resources for agriculture research, human nutrition research, extension, higher education, and technical information systems, including the Nat. Agri. Library.
