Editor’s Note

I have been editing Education and Culture since 1994, when it was still known as Current Issues in Education. Among the goals set by the Society at the time of my appointment was to give the journal a more professional and scholarly profile, so I set out to change the name, the cover and the quality of the production. This was all part of a broader plan to attract better manuscripts. The strategy worked, I think, and we have had a pretty good run of manuscripts in the journal for the past ten years.

I am happy now to pass the editorial reins to A.G. Rud, who will take over as editor in 2004 and will release his first issue of EC with the fall issue. Naturally, all manuscripts should be sent to him now:

Finally, I am also pleased to announce that the new Secretary/Treasurer for the John Dewey Society is Jeanne Connell. She will be handling all of the membership issues from now on.
