Against the Grain

If Rumors Were Horses

We understand that Albion has been bought by Charles Negaro who operates a small chain of quality trade bookstores in Connecticut including Atticus Books (across from Yale University) and the Wesleyan College Bookstore (Middletown, CT). Jim Murphy will continue to run Albion but the company will no longer supply books to libraries. This information courtesy of Barry Fast (Scholarly Book Center).

And Jackie Thompson is returning to Wiley November 6 after the death of her husband, Larry Cooper (Scholarly Book Center) and the birth of her son Aaron.

And congratulations are in order! Forrest and Margaret Link (Forrest is of Midwest Library Service fame) are the proud parents of twins, Alice Lorraine and Jeremy John, born July 31, 1990.

We understand that Warren Eisenberg (remember him? He used to be with Ballen and also with Samson) is alive and well and living in Ft. Myers, FL. We understand that he’s doing so well that he even ate supper with Lenny Schrift (President of Ballen Booksellers International). And Lenny tells us that Warren still wears an earring (We think Warren began the trend).

We hear that Ed Lockman (The Faxon Fulfillment Center) is living in newly married bliss.

Carol Eyler is now Head of Technical Services at Mercer College Library in Macon, Georgia.

On November 29 and 30 in the Dallas Holiday Inn Crowne Plaza, AMIGOS will sponsor a special workshop “The Reality of Collection Evaluation: Facts, Myths and Practices” with featured speakers George Soete (University of California, San Diego), Bonnie MacEwan (University of Missouri-Columbia) and Mary Bushing (Montana State University).

Samuel Lazerow Fellowship for Research in Acquisitions or Technical Services

Purpose: To foster advances in acquisitions or technical services in an academic or research library by providing librarians a fellowship for research, travel, or writing in those fields. Research projects in collection development or the compilation of bibliographies will not be supported by this fellowship.

Donor: The Institute for Scientific Information funds the fellowship, which consists of a $1,000 cash award and a citation, in memory of one of their senior vice-presidents who had a distinguished career in library and information science and who held high-level posts in each of the three national libraries of the U. S. - National Library of Agriculture, National Library of Medicine, and the Library of Congress.

Criteria: The proposals will be judged with an emphasis on the following:
1. Potential significance of the project to acquisitions or technical services work.
2. Originality and creativity.
3. Clarity and completeness of the proposal.
4. Evidence of an interest in scholarship, such as a previous publication record.

Submission procedures: Brief proposals (five pages or less, double-spaced) should be sent to the ACRL office and include the following: Description of research, travel or writing project, schedule of project, estimate of expenses. (Examples: professional travel, computer time, photocopying, typing), and current curriculum vita. Recipients of the fellowship will be asked to submit a brief report of the results of their research.

Deadline: December 1, 1990.

From Nat Bodian,
Publisher’s Marketing Consultant

Dear Katina:

In my article on changes in book publishing in the ATG June issue, I’d lamented about the “Decrease in Publishers Publishing Books About Publishing.”

I’d mentioned in my article “In distant years, R.R. Bowker called itself ‘The Publisher’s Publisher.’ Today, Bowker has abandoned that roll.”

My reference to books for the publishing industry dealt with small, single-author, limited-appeal references and monographs written by people in the industry for people in the industry.

In the September issue of ATG you published a response from Peter Simon, Vice President for Database Publishing at Bowker. The publishing industry books Simon mentioned in his response were Books in Print, and Literary Marketplace. It points up Bowker’s current publishing focus—database and subscription publications that can be updated and reissued annually or periodically, mainly to subscribers.

Peter Simon’s response in ATG seems to reinforce my earlier lament. People active in the book industry today have virtually no opportunity for publication should they write about their work or experience. Publishers like Bowker, who claim to serve the industry, are declining such works at this time with turn down phrases such as “...does not fit into our present publishing program.”

The quote in the preceding paragraph is not made up. It is a Bowker publisher’s response to a 1990 proposal for a new publishing industry guide that in earlier years Bowker would have snapped up in a minute.

My comments in my June ATG article still stand, Peter Simon’s letter to the contrary. € remain the same.

Acquisitions 91 (sponsored by Genaway and Associates in Canfield, Ohio) will take place in Minneapolis, Minnesota, on April 10 and 11, 1991.

And we understand that SISAC has agreed to move forward in the development of electronic data interchange (EDI) standards for journal orders, order acknowledgements, claims, cancellations, and invoices. Both EBSCO and Faxon are members of the International Working Party on Magnetic Media Transfer, a group of international journal publishers and subscription agents working toward the transmission of messages containing dispatch information. Sandra Paul, Managing Agent for SISAC’s parent organization (and regular contributor to Against the Grain), the Book Industry Study Group, is coordinating the efforts across Subcommittees and with BISAC. The study Group joined ASCX12 last year. Paul has acknowledged the growing use of X12 formats for national and international EDI. “Although SISAC’s library constituency has traditionally used data communications formats based on ANSI/NISO Z39.2, NISO’s agreement to migrate its standards to ASCX12 allows us to proceed with our work,” Sandy says. “If SISAC gets as much enthusiastic support as we’ve had in BISAC’s work, I expect it will take a full year to finalize the ASC X12 formats for serial transactions.” If you want to contribute your two cents here, contact BISAC, 160 Fifth Ave., New York, NY 10010 (phone: (212)929-1393, FAX (212)989-7542.

The Commission on Preservation and Access and the Southeastern Library Network (SOLINET) have begun a collaborative project to design and conduct a preservation management seminar for library staff who have part-time preservation responsibility. To be led by SOLINET staff and be held for one week hopefully during the summer of 1991, the new seminar will help library staff members develop the management skills and implement the activities that contribute to successful
