You can. With ProQuest SiteBuilder®, a content integration tool, allowing libraries with ProQuest® to gather information, simplifying searches for patrons, faculty and students. Giving them electronic access to articles from course-specific journals, magazines and newspapers. SiteBuilder also provides reserve rooms, where students can view articles without having to be physically present in the library. And topic files, where students can gain access to a cross-section of information in a particular area of interest. All with durable links and copyright-cleared material. It’s simple to use and even easier to update. So now there’s less time spent searching. And more time spent discovering. www.proquest.com

New reference sources from Oxford.

The Oxford Encyclopedia of Ancient Egypt
Donald B. Redford, editor-in-chief

Synthesizing centuries of scholarship, The Oxford Encyclopedia of Ancient Egypt is the most comprehensive and authoritative reference source of its kind. Covering more than 5,000 years of history, the Encyclopedia not only surveys in detail the archaeological record—it features articles by leading experts on every aspect of Egyptian life—from life in desert towns and the courts of the Pharaohs to art, architecture, religion, literature, language, politics, and extraordinary legacy of a spectacular civilization.

Encyclopedia of the Dead Sea Scrolls
Lawrence H. Schiffman and James C. VanderKam, editors-in-chief

Here in two volumes is the definitive guide to the greatest religious discovery of the century. Featuring 450 original articles by distinguished contributors from many fields of learning, the Encyclopedia brings together what we know about the scrolls discovered in the Judean desert—from their historical background and the many interpretations and analyses of the texts to their significance for Judaism and Christianity.

World Christian Encyclopedia
Second Edition
David B. Barrett, George T. Kurian, and Todd M. Johnson, editors

Here is the completely revised and expanded new edition of a classic reference source—the comprehensive survey of contemporary Christianity. Now in three volumes, the Encyclopedia provides an unparalleled wealth of information about 30,000 denominations, and about the religious life of 251 nations, including new data on Christian life and practice in China, the former Soviet Union, and other areas of the world. Tables, charts, photographs, full-color maps, and resource listings throughout.

From reviews of the first edition:
“An outstanding compilation of data...[for] all academic and public libraries. Highly recommended.”
—Booklist
“Brilliantly produced...a standard reference work.”—Library Journal
“An impressive, country-by-country, denomination-by-denomination, and year-by-year survey of most of the world’s religions.”

An authoritative review of the environmental condition of the seas of the world for researchers in marine environmental sciences, oceanography and marine engineering

Seas at the Millennium
An Environmental Evaluation

Edited by:
C. Sheppard
University of Warwick
Coventry, UK

All aspects of man’s interactions with the seas and their biological and physical systems will be brought into sharp focus, with special attention paid to:

- landfill and its effects
- pollutant discharges over time
- effects of pollutants on biota and food chains
- effects of over fishing
- consequences of sequestration of pollutants in sediments

Progressing geographically region by region, a complete chapter will be dedicated to each sea and will provide:

- an historical overview of the area concerned in environmental terms
- uses to which the sea or watershed has been put and to which it is put today
- its current environmental status and major problems arising from human use
- informed comment on major trends
- problems and successes
- recommendations for the future

If you think we're just a small company, you should see the size of Kathi's rolodex.

At Emery-Pratt, Kathi is usually two steps ahead of everyone. She meets with publishers about exciting new books that aren't even available to the public yet. And by the time the public does hear about them, she's already shipping them off to our customers around the country. With so many publishing sources, we are better able to find all the books our library customers want the most. Somehow Kathi always knows what's hot and where to find it. How does she do it? She says it's experience. We think she might just have a sixth sense about it.

The next time you order books, give us a call. We're sure Kathi can get them all for you.

The Nicest People in the Book Business
Many New Titles Debut Online

AIP announces that Journal of Physical and Chemical Reference Data is now available online for the first time. Print subscribers are entitled to online access at no extra charge. JPCRD provides critically evaluated reviews of standard reference data in physics and chemistry. This is also the first year that MAIK Nauka translation journals distributed by AIP are available online. Access to this rich collection of Russian research is free to print subscribers and separate online subscriptions are available, as well. See www.aip.org/journal_catalog/soclist.html and click MAIK Nauka/Interperiodica.

Save with Online Journal Subscriptions

AIP now offers online subscriptions at savings of up to 50%. AIP also offers you an expanded choice of online combination packages. These can help cut costs while adding titles to your collection. For information, contact mktg@aip.org.

AIP Launches Two New Virtual Journals

The Virtual Journal of Nanoscale Science and Technology and the Virtual Journal of Biological Physics Research are online sites that collect related articles from a broad range of leading physical science journals. Spearheaded by the American Physical Society and the American Institute of Physics, these free sites give you quick, convenient access to cutting-edge research, plus all the functionality and power of an online journal. The growing list of more than 45 participating journals represents some of the most prestigious scientific and technical societies.

Sage Publications, a leading international publisher of journals, books, and electronic media, is celebrating 35 years of global publishing excellence. Dedicated to the dissemination of information, Sage Publications provides researchers, professionals, scholars, policymakers, and students with the tools and information they need.

In this new century, Sage Publications will continue to set the standard for innovative, interdisciplinary, and international publishing excellence.

Sage Publications is known throughout the world for its pioneering publications in research methods, political science, criminology, interpersonal violence, cultural and gender studies, methodology and evaluation, management and organizational studies, family studies, urban studies, and sociology. Many Sage books and journals were the first publications to define their discipline. Sage continues the tradition of global publishing excellence by expanding its coverage to include additional disciplines in the scientific, technical, and medical fields.

Meeting the needs of today's professionals and keeping pace with current technologies, most Sage journals are available electronically through Swetsnet, EBSCO Online, Rowecom/Faxon's Information Quest, and OCLC.

Applied Mechanics Reviews

Changing to meet the needs of today's engineering researcher

AMR is among the most widely used engineering journals in research collections around the world.

For over fifty years, Applied Mechanics Reviews (AMR), has enabled researchers and practicing engineers to manage the flow of technical information. In each issue, AMR features abstracts from 475 international journals, book reviews, retrospectives, and review articles surveying the current literature and analyzing recent trends.

NEW IN 2000

• In July, free access to online bibliographic database of article abstracts

NEW IN 2001

• Newly-designed AMR published six times a year
• Expanded selection of articles and reviews in print
• Available online, bibliographic database updated monthly with latest abstracts
